BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

INCRYASE AND EXPENDITURE OF THE FIRE DEFARIMENT.
Alderman DOHRATY (Nineteenth ward) presented a resolution for a reference to the Committee on Repairs and Supplies on the subject of furnishing a new house for Hese Company, No. 32.
Alderman DENNAM (Sixteenth ward) wished to know where the company was located, and whether they really required a new house.
Alderman DENNAM (Sixteenth ward) wished to know where the company was located, and whether they really required a new house.
Alderman DENNAM replied—They were located in the Nineteenth ward and, that the place they now occupied was in a wooden shed formerly used as a cow stable, out in the fields between Seventh and Eighth avanues, in Fifty-ninth street. The company itself was one of the most energetic and deserving in the ward. The engine or hose carriage—

Alderman Twrzn (Gweath ward)—Would wot against the goutle of the post o

duct the prisoner then said that he would take his excuse in the morning. The witness Loughlin says, that the last expression was used in an angry tone, but she says that the meaning she attached to it was, that he would make some suitable apology when he would be son returned about nine o'clock and he heard the latter part of the alleraction. The evidence next shows that the prisoner remained in bed the next morning, until soven o'clock, the then got up and went out; it is not stated where he went to; about this time the son went out; but he, the prisoner returned again, and went to bed; about eleven o'clock, the prisoner was called to breakfast; he said he wanted something tasty; the deceased then sent the servant for a beet steak, and while she was cut the occurrence took place; when the deceased was brought to the Hospital. Dr. Suckley asked her why the prisoner killed her; he said, because she would not get her more; and her son's money, and spent it in that way. It would seem that there was no rancor arising from the previous evening's difficulty, but that he would not get money to buy run, and on that provocation he cut her threat. It is not necessary for you to find the causes and motives that actuated to the act. to find that there was a murder: but if the facts show that there were premeditated motiven to commit the deed, you will find this act to be that of murder. Now, in reference to the definition of murder. Show has been a recent exposition, which perhaps, gives a different view of it from what previous lying in wait; a previous preparation of the means of death-such as procuring poison, getting the meturing the will be a such as a s quired or the force of the Fire Department need be increased in the proportion it had been He also questioned whether there was any necessity to build three-story houses; he believed a one story house would answer in all ones. He did not impeach his veracity, or question his integrity, but he did question was the mecanity of increasing the department in the proportion it had been for the past few months.

The question was then taken on a reference to the Committee on Repairs and Supplies, and carried; Alderman Benman dissenting.

ton, but he wiched the adoption of this report to be understeed as a precedent, and that when men came with a reasonable application of this report to be understeed as a precedent, and that when men came with a reasonable application of this report to be allowed the contract of the life of the Committee on Sewers, had always opposed stremuously such applications. He would always opposed stremuously such applications came in, he would grant the favor of his approval—not his opposition.

He would grant the favor of his approval—not his opposition.

The property of the city made by him. This application had gone before a proper committee, and they had reported. He did not see any reason why this should be established as a precedent. The gentleman from the upper part of the city made by him. This application of his knew the had always opposing, the certainly well of the stream of the knew the stream of the knew the work of the kind, which ought not to be granted. He (Alderman Prexx, Washam Demark—1 of the Skixenth would act consistently, and do so too.

Alderman Issaacs did not rise. He supposed the wash of this kind, which ought not to be greated and the wash of the supposed of the knew the property of the department, for daring to interfer with them, how far he had succeeding the favor of the gentle

Alderman Substrugant (Third ward)—I shall vote for a istone of the most painful that can fall to the lot of man. It is never an easy thing to be just. It is easy to be merciful, and it requires less sacrifes; but if you, gentlemen, on the exercise of your shacere, enlightened, and upright judgment, abould be of the opinion that the accused is guilty of the crime of murder. I trust that you will unheatatingly say so. If there are circumstances which would appeal to mercy, there is a power in the State to show that mercy; it is for you te pronounce the verdict; it is for the court to pronounce the judgment, and if mercy is to be exercised, it is for the Rzecutive.

The jury then at ten minutes after four o'clock, retired, and at ten minutes after six, came into court with alow and solemn steps, and downcast eyes, which indicated the result of their deliberations. Their names were called over, and on being asked by the Clerk if they had agreed, the foreman answered in the affirmative.

The Clerk—How say you gentlemen is James Doyle, the pri-oner at the bar guilty or not guilty of the murder and felony charged?

Foreman—Guilty. We would strongly recommend him to the mercy of the Governor

Mr Clinton demanded that the jury be poiled, which being done, each juror answered, guilty. The prisoner, who heard the verdict with unrufited caimness, was then remanded for rentence. Mr. Clinton asked for time to prepare a bill for exceptions. The Judge assented, and the court was adjourned to Thursday (this) morning, at 10 c'clock, when one of the other murder cases will be proceeded with.
